Preface

The Central Product Classification (CPC) constitutes a complete product classification covering goods and services. It was intended to serve as an international standard for assembling and tabulating all kinds of data requiring product detail including industrial production, national accounts, service industries, domestic and foreign commodity trade, international trade in services, balance of payments, consumption and price statistics. Other basic aims were to provide a framework for international comparison and promote harmonization of various types of statistics dealing with goods and services.

The first version of the Central Product Classification (CPC), the Provisional Central Product Classification was published in 1990. This version was superseded by the Central Product Classification Version 1.0, published in 1998. Then, particular attention was paid to the elaboration of the services part of the classification. This newly revised Central Product Classification (CPC) Version 1.1 represents a further update to the CPC. The development of this new version is intended to incorporate modifications due to recent changes in economies worldwide and sustained technological advancement in the period since the development of CPC Version 1.0. The continual revision of this classification is evidence of the commitment to systematize the improvement of the classification over time, keeping it current and making it more responsive to existing economic and technological reality, while maintaining conceptual consistency.

The primary purpose of the CPC Version 1.1 is to classify the goods and services that are the result of production in any economy. This production is accounted for in the national accounts of countries and can be measured and analyzed using the 1993 System of National Accounts (SNA). CPC Version 1.1 is useful in studying transactions in goods and services in detail. It can also be used as a basis for developing lists of goods and services for specific purposes, such as price statistics surveys, etc, its primary advantage being that it has met the criteria for serving as an international standard. It has broad acceptance and can facilitate the maintenance of constant categories of products, both with regard to character and definition. It can therefore serve as a framework for international comparison.

Introduction to the Central Product Classification

I. HISTORICAL BACKGROUND AND REVISION

A. Historical Background

1. The need for the development of the Central Product Classification originated from initiatives in the early 1970s to harmonize international classifications. In the development of those initiatives, a standard classification of all products was perceived as a key element. At the seventeenth session of the Statistical Commission, in 1972,<sup>1</sup> the twenty-first session of the Conference of European Statisticians, in 1973, and meetings of members of both bodies with the secretariats of international organizations, there was general agreement on the need to improve harmonization among the various classifications prepared under the auspices of the United Nations and other international bodies, in economic and other fields.

2. With regard to the preconditions for creating a comprehensive classification of all goods and services, an important development took place in the 1970s. The Customs Cooperation Council (CCC) undertook the revision of its nomenclature (CCCN) and its extension from a four-digit system to a six-digit system. As a result, a new nomenclature, called the Harmonized Commodity Description and Coding System (HS) was adopted in 1983 and entered into force on 1 January 1988.<sup>2</sup> The Statistical Office of the United Nations Secretariat participated in the development of HS, mainly in order to ensure that the disaggregations applied in HS were, to the extent possible, consistent with the Standard International Trade Classification (SITC)<sup>3</sup> of the United Nations and the industrial origin of the goods.

3. Based on the recommendations of an Expert Group convened by the United Nations Secretariat, the Statistical Commission at its nineteenth session, in 1976,<sup>4</sup> approved a programme to harmonize the existing activity classifications of the United Nations, the European Communities and the Council for Mutual Economic Assistance and to simultaneously develop a system of different, but interrelated, classifications of economic activities and goods and services. Development of a new classification covering both goods and services (products) - the Central Product Classification (CPC) - was intended to provide a basic tool in this programme. The proposed product classification was to use the detailed subheadings of HS as building blocks for the part dealing with transportable goods and to take into account the basic categories of economic supply and use as specified in the System of National Accounts (SNA), such as intermediate consumption, final consumption, capital formation and imports and exports.<sup>5</sup> The Statistical Commission endorsed the programme and supported its continuation at subsequent sessions, with the provision that existing systems maintain their essential character.<sup>6</sup>

4. During the period 1977-1987, the Statistical Office of the United Nations Secretariat and the Statistical Office of the European Communities (Eurostat) convened six meetings of the Joint Working Group on World Level Classifications for the purpose of developing an Integrated System of Classifications of Activities and Products (SINAP) to serve as an interim classification. It was intended that categories of SINAP be used as building blocks for the second revision of the International Standard Industrial Classification of All Economic Activities (ISIC),<sup>7</sup> the General Industrial Classification of Economic Activities within the European Communities (NACE),<sup>8</sup> and for related classifications of goods and services. The joint Working Group also contributed proposals on the relationship between SITC and CPC.

5. During the period 1983-1988, the Statistical Office of the United Nations Secretariat organized a series of related expert group meetings dealing with economic classifications. Countries from different parts of the world and at various stages of development were represented at the meetings, as were regional commissions and international organizations. The main task of the meetings was to review the drafts of ISIC Rev.3 and CPC prepared by the Statistical Office.<sup>9</sup>

6. The first complete draft of the CPC was reviewed by the Statistical Commission at its twenty-fourth session, in 1987.<sup>10</sup> On the Commission's recommendation, work on CPC continued in conjunction with international organizations, in particular Eurostat and the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD). The development of service classifications and related explanatory notes for service products was the main item on the agenda at the early meetings of the Voorburg Group on Service Statistics.<sup>11</sup> In 1987 and 1988 the Joint Working Group on World Level Classifications and a United Nations expert group meeting reviewed subsequent drafts of the CPC. The Expert Group on Harmonization of Economic Classifications recommended that the abbreviation CPC for Central Product Classification be included in the title, regardless of language, to facilitate international recognition when referring to the classification.<sup>12</sup>

7. The Statistical Commission at its twenty-fifth session, in 1989, considered the final draft and approved its publication as a provisional document.<sup>13</sup> The Commission recommended that Member States start testing the Provisional CPC in order to gain experience in obtaining internationally comparable data on goods and services.

8. The Provisional CPC was published by the United Nations in 1991.<sup>14</sup> The experience of national and international users provided a sound basis for its subsequent revision. Account was also taken of the experience gained in the development of the European Union's Classification of Products by Activity (CPA).<sup>15</sup>

9. The Provisional CPC was revised, updated and finalized and presented for adoption to the United Nations Statistics Division as Central Product Classification (CPC) Version 1.0. The CPC Version 1.0 was published in 1998<sup>16</sup> in response to the need to update and revise parts of the provisional version. Particular attention was paid to the services part of the classification to ensure that the structure of CPC adequately reflects new technologies, and growth in the services sector of the economy.<sup>17</sup> In addition, the goods part of the Provisional CPC and the Standard International Trade Classification (SITC Rev.3)<sup>18</sup> were brought up to date with the 1996 edition of the Harmonized Commodity Description and Coding System (HS)<sup>19</sup>.

10. The Statistical Commission at its thirtieth session<sup>20</sup>, recommended that the Expert Group on International Economic and Social Classifications should be the central coordinating body for implementing the proposed work programme on statistical classifications, and that its tasks should include classification revisions, practical proposals to bring about convergence of existing international and multinational classifications and review of the underlying principles. The Expert Group, at its meeting in November 1999, approved the establishment of a Technical Subgroup to the Expert Group. This Technical Subgroup was asked to take action to update CPC Version

B. The 2002 update to Version 1.0

11. The Technical Subgroup was set up to carry out technical, analytical and exploratory tasks in the further development of CPC resulting in the development of the new classification, CPC Version 1.1. The work on developing CPC Version 1.1 consisted of the following stages, leading to its approval by the Statistical Commission, at its thirty-third session. The members of the Technical Subgroup discussed the shortcomings of CPC Version 1.0 based on feedback from users of the classification, then considered and finalized the draft of CPC Version 1.1. This draft was then widely circulated to a number of national statistical offices and regional and international agencies for comment. Recommendations for change were taken into consideration before the classification was completed and submitted to the Statistical Commission at its thirty-third session, in 2002.

12. The members of the Technical Sub-group made significant contributions to the update and further development of CPC V1.1, with Statistics Canada playing the key coordinating role in the process. Without the valuable voluntary contributions of the statistical agencies of Australia, Austria, Canada, France, the United States of America, the International Monetary Fund (IMF), the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), the Statistical Office of the European Communities (Eurostat), as well as statistical offices of a number of other countries, it would not have been possible to complete CPC Version 1.1.

13. The United Nations Statistics Division and the Technical Subgroup established close working relationship with the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and the World Trade Organization (WTO) secretariat, owing to the fact that CPC was used as a source in the context of the preparation of the General Agreement on Trade in Services (GATS)<sup>22</sup>, and the development of the EBOPS – CPC - GNS/W/120 correspondence table as an annex to the first Manual on Statistics of International Trade in Services (Manual) being prepared by the Interagency Task Force on Statistics of International Trade in Services<sup>23</sup>. Thanks are due to many staff members of the contributing national and international agencies for their substantive assistance in this important work.

14. The focus in this round of revisions for 2002 was to make all the necessary changes and updates to CPC V1.0 since its inception and official use in 1998. These included the recommended changes in selected parts of the classification relating to services, including the updates and errata as compiled in the UN Classifications Registry<sup>24</sup>, and regularly posted in the UN International Economic and Social Classifications Website<sup>25</sup> at <http://www.un.org/Depts/unsd/class>. A major initiative of bringing the goods part of CPC V1.0, and the Standard International Trade Classification (SITC Rev.3) up to date with the 2002 edition of the Harmonized Commodity Description and Coding System (HS) was also undertaken. These changes, together with necessary corrections in the correspondence with the International Standard Industrial Classification of All Economic Activities (ISIC Rev. 3.1)<sup>26</sup>, were incorporated into CPC in sections 0 to 4 and are summarized in Part Six (Correspondence tables) below. However, apart from these limited changes, no overall review or revision of Sections 0 to 4 of either the Provisional CPC or CPC Version 1.0, relating to goods has been undertaken in CPC Version 1.1.

15. The present publication consists of seven parts. Part one contains the introduction, which provides basic information on the conceptual background, purpose, principles and application of this classification. Part two shows the broad structure of CPC Version 1.1 at the one- and two-digit levels. Part three contains the detailed classification structure, showing, for Sections 0 to 4, the correspondence with HS2002 and SITC Rev.3 in separate columns for each subclass (five-digit category) of CPC Version 1.1; the principal industry of origin in terms of ISIC Rev.3.1 is indicated throughout. Part four consists of the explanatory notes for categories in Sections 5 to 9 of CPC Version 1.1. Part five comprises correspondence tables showing the linkage in both directions between Sections 5 to 9 of CPC Version 1.0 and the CPC Version 1.1, as well as between Provisional CPC and CPC Version 1.1. Part six contains a table of changes in Sections 0 to 4 of CPC Version 1.1, providing a list of categories affected by change from the CPC Version 1.0. It also includes correspondences between CPC Version 1.0 and 1.1, showing only the changes between those two versions and a complete correspondence between the Provisional CPC and CPC Version 1.1. Part seven includes an English alphabetical index to Sections 5 to 9 of CPC Version 1.1. The detailed structure of CPC Version 1.1, the explanatory notes, correspondence tables and alphabetical index of Sections 5 to 9 are posted at the UN International Economic and Social Classifications Website at <http://www.un.org/Depts/unsd/class>. The Provisional and Versions 1.0 and 1.1 of the CPC are also available in electronic format, upon request, from the United Nations Statistics Division.

II. UNDERLYING PRINCIPLES OF THE CLASSIFICATION

A. Purpose and nature of the classification

16. The main purpose of the CPC is to provide a framework for the international comparison of statistics dealing with products and to serve as a guide for developing or revising existing classification schemes of products in order to make them compatible with international standards. CPC was developed primarily to enhance harmonization among various fields of economic and related statistics and to strengthen the role of national accounts as an instrument for the coordination of economic statistics. It provides a basis for recompiling basic statistics from their original classifications into a standard classification for analytical use.

17. CPC constitutes a comprehensive classification of all goods and services. With regard to services, no international classification covering the whole spectrum of outputs of the various service industries and serving the different analytical needs of statistical and other users was available before the development of CPC. As a general-purpose classification, CPC provides less detail than other specific classification systems in areas or applications for which such systems are available, for example HS for international commodity trade statistics.

18. CPC presents categories for all products that can be the object of domestic or international transactions or that can be entered into stocks. It includes products that are an output of economic activity, including transportable goods, non-transportable goods and services. The CPC in general follows the definition of products within the SNA. A few deviations from this standard have been accepted to allow for the maintenance of links to other product classifications and to address needs for statistics in other frameworks. Assets that were previously included in the CPC have been removed and will be incorporated into a future comprehensive classification of assets.

19. CPC, as a standard central product classification, was developed to serve as an instrument for assembling and tabulating all kinds of statistics requiring product detail. Such statistics may cover production, intermediate and final consumption, capital formation, foreign trade or prices. They may refer to commodity flows, stocks or balances and may be compiled in the context of input-output tables, balance of payments and other analytical presentations.

20. It is hoped that, in the long run, CPC will contribute to a reduction in the number of product classifications used internationally. As a general-purpose product classification, it serves as a guideline for future product-type classifications for specific areas of the economy. Such specific classifications should be compatible with the general framework of CPC so as to ensure comparability of data.

B. Principles used in constructing CPC

21. CPC, covering all goods and services as well as certain types of assets, is a system of categories that are both exhaustive and mutually exclusive. This means that if a product does not fit into a CPC category, it must automatically fit into another category. Consistent with the other principles used, homogeneity within categories is maximized. CPC classifies products into categories based on the physical properties and the intrinsic nature of the products as well as the principle of industrial origin.

22. Each subclass in sections 0 to 4 of CPC is defined as the equivalent of one or the aggregation of several headings or subheadings of the Harmonized Commodity Description and Coding System (HS), a classification of the World Customs Organization. HS itself uses primarily the physical property criterion for classifying goods. With HS in use in many countries for international trade statistics and in some countries for production statistics, the introduction of CPC in those countries is thereby facilitated.

23. The physical properties and intrinsic nature of products are distinguishing characteristics that are proper to the products themselves. These include, for example, the raw materials of which goods are made, the stage of production or the way in which goods are produced or services rendered, the purpose or user category for which products are intended and the prices at which they are sold.

24. The importance of the industrial origin of goods and services was recognized by the attempt to group into one CPC subclass mainly the products that are the output of a single industry. Through their linkage to the industrial origin criterion, the input structure, technology and organization of production characteristics of products are also reflected in the structure of CPC. The industrial origin of products criterion is one of the classification principles applied by another United Nations classification, the International Standard Industrial Classification of All Economic Activities.

25. In the construction of CPC, the nature of the product and the industry of origin were taken into account. However, practical difficulties had to be resolved. Some industries produce goods of very different nature. For example, meat and hides are both produced by slaughterhouses. These products are not put together in one category or even in the same section of CPC. Since unprocessed hides are considered raw animal materials, they are classified in section 0 (Agriculture, forestry and fishery products), whereas meat is classified in section 2, among food products.

26. In some cases, goods of different industrial origin are included in a single CPC category, particularly where HS does not follow the industrial origin criterion. For instance, rarely does HS distinguish between metal products of cast iron and other metal products. Moreover, many products made by casting are classified in HS as parts of machinery or other goods. As a result, CPC does not have a separate category of cast iron products, and therefore no reference is made to ISIC group 273 (Casting of metals).

27. Similar problems concerning industrial origin arise when industries produce both goods and services. Examples of such services are repair, maintenance and manufacturing on a fee or contract basis. Although the industrial origin of these services is often the same as the origin of the goods themselves, it should be clear that the nature of the services involved might be markedly different from that of the goods, so that the goods and services should be classified under different parts of CPC. Therefore, the services presented in divisions 86 to 89 of CPC Version 1.1, are distinguished from the manufactured goods classified in sections 2 to 4.

C. Goods and services in CPC

28. Among the variety of criteria generally used for distinguishing between goods and services (tangible versus intangible, storable versus non-storable or transportable versus non-transportable), none provides a valid, practical and unambiguous distinction between goods and services in all cases. While the product content of most CPC subclasses can be identified as being goods or services, in some cases this cannot be resolved easily. Examples of borderline cases are photographs, computer tapes and meals or drinks in restaurants. In these cases, as well as others, a bundle, that is, a combination or mixture of products, is sold and, more often than not, this bundle consists of both goods and services components. In the case of meals or drinks consumed in a restaurant, for example, the food and beverages consumed are goods and the cooking and serving components are services, as are the seating and the locality of the restaurant, constituting an intangible component. The purchaser of such a "mixed product" usually does not give much thought to whether a good or a service is purchased. The customer in a bookshop wants to buy a good and is probably not aware of the individual services provided by the author, the publisher and the retail salesperson. On the other hand, the person who has a pair of shoes resoled probably regards the transaction as a purchase of a service and does not think of the pieces of repair material involved. In the case of a restaurant meal, the situation is even more ambiguous and varied with respect to the goods portion of the transaction compared with the service portion.

29. Although a precise distinction between goods and services may be interesting from a theoretical point of view and may even be relevant for the compilation and analysis of certain economic statistics, there is no need to embody such a distinction into a classification of products such as CPC. CPC was developed to classify everything that can be the object of a transaction, covering goods and services (products).

D. Goods and services in SNA

30. The 1993 SNA provides a definition of products. It states that goods and services (products) are the result of production; they are exchanged and used for various purposes - as inputs in the production of other goods and services, as final consumption or for investment. In the 1993 SNA the term products is a synonym for goods and services. In order to study transactions in goods and services in detail, SNA uses the Central Product Classification.<sup>27</sup>

<sup>27</sup> Commission of the European Communities, International Monetary Fund, Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development, United Nations and World Bank, System of National Accounts, 1993

Further, the production boundary of SNA excludes the provision of services by households for own final consumption within the same household. These SNA definitions are essentially those embodied in the characteristics of CPC categories.

31. For international trade statistics, the 1993 SNA also encompasses the concepts of goods and services, rather than the concepts of merchandise and non-merchandise trade as described in the previous SNA. This further enhances the conceptual integrity of CPC.

E. Coding system of the classification

32. The coding system of CPC is hierarchical and purely decimal. The classification consists of sections (identified by the first digit), divisions (identified by the first and second digits), groups (identified by the first three digits), classes (identified by the first four digits) and subclasses (identified by all five digits, taken together). The codes for the sections range from 0 to 9 and each section may be divided into nine divisions. At the third digit of the code each division may, in turn, be divided into nine groups which may then be further divided into nine classes and then again into nine subclasses. In total there are 9 sections, 70 divisions, 305 groups, 1,167 classes and 2,092 subclasses. The code numbers in CPC consist of five digits without separation of any kind between digits. This coding system was chosen to avoid possible confusion with code numbers of another United Nations classification, the Standard International Trade Classification, which also has five-digit codes but uses a point to the right of the third digit.

33. Where a given level of classification is not further subdivided, a "0" is used in the position for the next more detailed level. For example, the code for the subclass "Clays" is 15400, since group 154 (Clays) is not divided into classes or subclasses. Similarly, the subclass "Bituminous or oil shale and tar sands" is coded 12030, as division 12 (Crude petroleum and natural gas) is not divided into groups but directly into classes, of which class 1203 (Bituminous or oil shale and tar sands) is not further subdivided.

34. For computerized applications the "0" can also indicate that the code is used for a total of all, more detailed, categories. Thus, the code 2610 could indicate the total of all categories 2611 through 2619, while 34600 could represent the total of all categories 34611 through 34620. Whenever possible, the "9" is reserved to designate residual categories. For example, class 0119 (Other cereals) contains all cereals not elsewhere classified in group 011 (Cereals). However, this approach does not apply to every case in which "9" is used in a code.

III. APPLICATION OF THE CLASSIFICATION

A. Use of different levels of the classification

35. Different uses and types of statistics are best served by presenting statistics in terms of different levels of aggregation. Thus, it may be necessary or desirable to use different levels of detail of CPC for different purposes. For example, for national accounting purposes, it may be necessary to classify data at a different level of detail from that required for industrial statistics purposes. Similarly, data on production obtained from establishments can usually be classified in far more detail than data on capital formation obtained from administrative reporting systems. The hierarchical structure of CPC provides a framework for comparable classifications of data at differing levels of detail.

B. Using CPC in establishing national classifications of products

36. Many countries that do not have the experience or resources to develop their own national product classifications or that want their national product classifications to be related to relevant international classifications as closely as possible may choose to use CPC as their national classification. In such cases CPC may be used as is. It may also be expanded or contracted, depending on the needs and possibilities of each country.

37. For a national product classification to be compatible with CPC, the most detailed categories of classification in the national scheme should coincide with, or be aggregations or dissections of the individual subclasses of CPC. In other words, each of the most detailed categories of the national product classification should either have the same scope as a CPC subclass, or be dissections of a CPC subclass, or be composed of two or more CPC subclasses, preferably from the same CPC class and group. The first two options are the preferred methods, as they provide the maximum opportunity for correspondence at the detailed level of CPC, while the third option allows for correspondence at a more aggregated level. Provided these requirements are met, the compatibility of national product classifications with CPC would not necessarily be affected by their structure or the position of the categories at their most detailed level.

38. It is preferable that additional subdivisions of expanded classifications be part of the same class of the international classification. If so desired, classifications based on CPC may be constructed by subdividing each subclass into as many as nine subcategories. This may be done by appending one decimal place to the CPC five-digit code. Alternatively, the subdivision of classes into subclasses in CPC may, in some cases, be expanded by replacing the subclasses with a greater number of more detailed categories. Where this approach is employed, the more detailed subclasses may be identified by means of five digits, provided that no more than nine subclasses are required for each class of CPC. To preserve comparability with the subclasses of CPC, the more detailed subcategories should be so delineated that they can be aggregated back to CPC subclasses.

39. Some countries may need to reduce the level of CPC detail in their national classifications. Some CPC categories may well be relatively unimportant in certain countries while other data concerning other CPC categories may simply be unavailable. For example, some countries may not find it practical to establish categories in their national classifications similar to the individual categories of divisions 43 to 46 (Machinery). They may find it more appropriate to combine some, or all, of the subclasses or classes in each of these divisions into single categories at the most detailed level of their classification. In so doing, one should take into account the principles described in paragraph 31 above.

C. Support for users of CPC

40. The United Nations Statistics Division is responsible for the development and maintenance of CPC. The developers of national product classifications and other institutions using CPC may find it in their interest to establish contact with the Statistics Division. Users of CPC may thus receive notification about plans for updates or revisions, information concerning interpretations and rulings and, in general, technical support in applying the classification. Users are encouraged to bring to the attention of the Statistics Division any difficulties they encounter in the implementation of CPC, request clarification and share their experience and remarks with regard to its adequacy and provide ideas or proposals for enhancing its usefulness. It is hoped that better awareness of the scope and needs of CPC users may facilitate the improvement of the classification of products. Communications may be sent to the Director, United Nations Statistics Division, Attention: Statistical Classifications Section, by mail (address: 2 United Nations Plaza, Room DC2-1420, New York, NY 10017, USA; fax: 1-212-963-1374), through the Classification Hotline by e-mail: chl@un.org or the UN International Economic and Social Classifications Website at <http://www.un.org/Depts/unsd/class>.

IV. RELATIONSHIP OF CPC TO OTHER CLASSIFICATIONS

A. Relationship to ISIC

41. CPC and ISIC are both general-purpose classifications, with ISIC representing the activity side of these two interrelated United Nations classifications. Each subclass of CPC consists of goods or services that are predominantly produced in a specific class or classes of ISIC Rev.3.1. With a view to accommodating users of CPC wishing to identify the relationship between CPC and ISIC, each CPC subclass has a reference to the ISIC Rev.3.1 industry or industries in which most of the goods or services in question are generally produced. The predominant ISIC class is shown by listing the corresponding four-digit ISIC Rev.3.1 codes next to the relevant CPC subclass in the tables presenting the detailed structure of CPC. Information on correspondences between CPC and ISIC Rev.3.1 categories is contained in Part three below. By rearranging the CPC subclasses according to their ISIC references, one can find the main goods or services that are outputs of certain industries.

42. It should be noted, however, that there is no intention of establishing one-to-one correspondence between CPC and ISIC. Such effort is considered neither practical nor desirable as it might lead to an inadequate description of CPC categories, especially at the higher levels, and it would also make harmonization with SITC difficult. The relationship between industries and their products is a complex and changing one. Furthermore, CPC is meant to be used in various kinds of statistics and should not be regarded as a mere extension of ISIC, as it is not limited to listing goods and services produced according to ISIC industries.

B. Relationship to HS

43. With regard to transportable goods, a very close relationship exists between CPC and HS, as CPC subclasses in sections 0 to 4 constitute groupings and rearrangements of complete categories of HS2002. As a result, 1,151 CPC subclasses have been defined through the use of over 5,000 headings and subheadings of HS2002 as building blocks. The corresponding HS2002 codes are shown next to each CPC subclass of sections 0 to 4 in the tables presenting the detailed structure of CPC in part three below.

44. CPC subclasses for transportable goods (sections 0 to 4) are defined in such a way that each consists of one or more six-digit subheadings of the Harmonized System (HS). In view of its important role in the construction of CPC, general information on HS is provided in paragraphs 46-49 below.

45. There are, however, a few exceptions to the rule that each CPC subclass in sections 0 to 4 corresponds to one or more HS headings and subheadings. For example, CPC subclass 17300 (Steam and hot water) has no equivalent in HS. There are a few other cases where a CPC subclass is more detailed than the corresponding HS subheading, resulting in a partial link. This usually reflects a situation where a certain product is important in production statistics at the national level, but insignificant in terms of international trade. An example of this would be CPC subclass 01820 (Sugar cane), which is no longer separately identified in the Harmonized System.

46. HS is an exhaustive nomenclature of internationally traded commodities (goods) classified according to the following criteria: classification according to raw or basic material, classification according to the degree of processing, classification by use or function and classification according to economic activities. These principles were maintained in all subsequent revisions of the nomenclature. The Customs Cooperation Council, which changed its name to World Customs Organization (WCO) in 1994, also agreed, in principle, to introduce the industrial origin criterion in the construction of HS. However, the principle that each subheading of HS should contain only goods that are normally produced by a single industry could not be strictly followed for various reasons. In some cases it was not possible for customs authorities to make a distinction concerning industrial origin on the basis of the physical properties of a good. Another reason was that the distinction would lead to categories that were insignificant in international trade. In other cases the historical and legal distinctions inherent in administering customs and trade requirements took precedence over the criterion of industrial origin. In some instances it was not clear where products of a certain industry would fall in HS. The fact that countries have different economic structures by industry added to the difficulty of adhering to this principle.

47. HS evolved from the original customs tariff nomenclature of the Customs Cooperation Council, the 1955 Brussels Tariff Nomenclature (BTN). In 1974 it was renamed the Customs Cooperation Council Nomenclature (CCCN). Efforts to harmonize BTN/CCCN and SITC led to a perfect accord with SITC Rev.2 by 1978. HS entered into force in 1988, modifying existing four-digit headings of CCCN and introducing subheadings identified by a six-digit code. Plans of WCO allow for updating HS every three or four years through meetings of a Review Subcommittee. Statisticians from Member States and the United Nations Statistics Division are represented in the work on updating HS to ensure that the relationship between this nomenclature and other international classifications is maintained. The latest amendment (HS2002) came into effect on 1 January 2002.

48. Besides the commodity nomenclature itself, HS contains legal rules of interpretation and the principles agreed to by contracting parties for administering the System. In addition, HS provides a very elaborate set of explanatory notes and an alphabetical index to assist in its use and interpretation.<sup>28</sup>

49. The universal implementation and wide use of HS is ensured by the International Convention on the Harmonized Commodity Description and Coding System, article 3.1 (b) of which requires that "each Contracting Party shall ... make publicly available its import and export trade statistics in conformity with the six-digit codes of the Harmonized System, or, on the initiative of the Contracting Party, beyond that level, to the extent that publication is not precluded for exceptional reasons such as commercial confidentiality or national security".

C. Relationship to SITC

50. The relationship between CPC and SITC is similar to that between CPC and HS because SITC Rev.3 also uses the HS subheadings as building blocks to create commodity groupings that are more suitable for the economic analysis of trade. The commodity groupings of SITC reflect (a) the materials used in production, (b) the processing stage, (c) market practices and uses of the products, (d) the importance of the commodities in terms of world trade and (e) technological changes. Regarding the correspondence of SITC Rev.3 with CPC for transportable goods, all five-digit items of SITC Rev.3 are contained wholly within single CPC subclasses in sections 0 to 4. As such, CPC subclasses consist of one or more SITC Rev.3 items. Correspondences between CPC and SITC Rev.3 are shown in the tables presenting the detailed structure of CPC included in part three below. Since SITC, like HS, deals only with transportable goods, no correspondence between CPC and SITC Rev.3 or between CPC and HS2002 exists for CPC categories in sections 5 to 9.

51. While the correspondence between CPC Ver.1.1 and HS2002 has been changed compared to the correspondence between CPC Ver.1.0 and HS96, due to the changes in the Harmonized System, there is no such change in the correspondence between CPC and SITC. SITC Rev.3 itself has not been affected by the HS changes. Instead, a new correspondence table linking HS2002 with SITC Rev.3 has been created and is available from the United Nations Statistics Division. When converting data from HS2002 to SITC Rev.3, this table should be used rather than the implied correspondence between clusters of HS and SITC categories in part three of this publication. The correspondence shown in part three is only accurate for conversions from and to CPC. In the very few cases where the scope of CPC subclasses has changed or new CPC subclasses have been created, the link to SITC Rev.3 had to be adjusted.

D. Relationship to other classifications and standards

52. In addition to ISIC, HS and SITC, there are a number of other classifications and standards interrelated with CPC, owing to its role as a general-purpose classification of goods and services.

53. The United Nations Classification by Broad Economic Categories (BEC)<sup>29</sup> is related to CPC through its close correlation with SITC. BEC is designed to serve as a means for converting external trade data compiled by using SITC into end-use categories that are meaningful within the SNA framework. It is generally possible to rearrange whole CPC subclasses into BEC categories through the correspondence between CPC and SITC Rev.3 and between SITC and BEC.

54. Since CPC provides the product dimension to many of the SNA tables, the CPC can be related to the Classifications of Expenditure According to Purpose<sup>30</sup>. This is reflected in the United Nations publication, Classifications of Expenditure According to Purpose: Classification of the Functions of Government (COFOG); Classification of Individual Consumption (COICOP), Classification of the Purposes of Non-Profit Institutions Serving Households (COPNI); Classification of the Outlays of Producers According to Purpose (COPP). Accordingly, correspondences between categories of COICOP and CPC have been elaborated<sup>31</sup>.

55. Since the beginning of 1988, the European Communities (now the European Union) has been using the Combined Nomenclature (CN) as its international trade classification. CN is an extension of HS with two extra digits, serving the particular customs and statistical needs of States members of the European Union. There is a straightforward relationship between CPC and CN, as whole categories of the latter can always be rearranged into CPC subclasses.

56. Through the joint efforts of the United Nations and the European Union for the harmonization of economic classifications, the structure and content of the revised General Industrial Classification of Economic Activities within the European Communities (NACE) and the related product classifications of the European Union were developed to be consistent with ISIC and CPC. The Classification of Products by Activity (CPA) is based on NACE and has links to CPC at the detailed level. PRODCOM, the list of industrial products of Eurostat,<sup>32</sup> can also be linked to CPC through the HS correspondences of the PRODCOM nomenclature and CPC.

57. In the course of the initial development work on CPC, with regard to the structure and content of the Provisional CPC categories corresponding to subclasses in Division 53 (Constructions) (structure now shown in Part five, Section II), use was made of the United Nations International Recommendations for Construction Statistics.<sup>33</sup>

58. The Provisional CPC was utilized as a source by the secretariat of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade in the preparation of the General Agreement on Trade in Services (GATS). Under the GATS agreements, texts with legal standing were drafted, which embodied extensive references to CPC, referred to by GATS as the "GNS/W/120 list". In anticipation of the next round of GATS negotiations and continued use of CPC as a source, a detailed technical review was conducted by the World Trade Organization secretariat, the United Nations Statistics Division and the Central Product Classification Subgroup of the Voorburg Group, in order to provide detailed explanations and interpretations of the changes that were made to the CPC. This extensive review process has led to a series of editorial corrections to and interpretations of CPC that are now documented in the United Nations CPC database and that have been incorporated in the present publication. Collaboration in the area of trade in services is expected to continue during future updating and revision of CPC.

59. The Statistical Commission, at its twenty-ninth session, in 1997, requested that activities be coordinated to maintain consistency between the fifth edition of the Balance of Payments Manual of the International Monetary Fund (IMF),<sup>34</sup> CPC Version 1.0, SNA 1993 and the manual on trade-in-services statistics proposed by the United Nations Inter-agency Task Force on Service Statistics.<sup>35</sup> The Manual on Statistics of International Trade in Services contains a classification of trade in services that is an extension of and is consistent with that prescribed for international trade in services in the fifth edition of the IMF Balance of Payments Manual. Consideration has been given, as far as possible, to CPC codes as the fundamental building blocks to describe internationally traded service products. The balance of payments categories and services are linked to the Provisional CPC, and a draft correspondence has been prepared between the balance of payments services classification and CPC Version 1.0.<sup>36</sup> A correspondence linking the extended balance of payments services classification (EBOPS), the CPC Ver.1.0 and the GNS/W/120 list has been published in the Manual on Statistics of International Trade in Services<sup>37</sup>.

60. A new international standard, the Tourism Satellite Account (TSA), has recently been developed and approved by the Statistical Commission at its thirty-first session in 2000. It sets the measurement of Tourism and its impact on the economy within the macroeconomic framework of the System of National Accounts. The TSA identifies Tourism in terms of characteristic products purchased by visitors and the activities that produce them and lists them in terms of the CPC and ISIC. The concepts, definitions and classifications to be used as well as the recommended methodological framework are described in Tourism Satellite Account: Recommended Methodological Framework<sup>38</sup>. Tourism characteristic products and tourism characteristic activities are listed in Annex II of that publication.

V. INTERPRETATION OF THE CPC SYSTEM

A. Rules of interpretation

61. As is often the case with any widely used statistical classification, numerous situations can be expected to arise when it will be unclear which CPC category a particular good or service should be assigned to. When classifying and coding products according to CPC, the following rules shall apply, depending on whether the considered output of a transaction involves transportable goods (see para. 55) or products other than transportable goods (see paras. 56-58).

62. The classification of goods in the categories of sections 0 to 4 shall be determined according to the terms of the corresponding categories in the Harmonized Commodity Description and Coding System (hereinafter referred to as the "Harmonized System"), which is governed by the rules reproduced below.<sup>39</sup>

“General rules for the interpretation of the Harmonized System

“Classification of goods in the Nomenclature shall be governed by the following principles:

“1. The titles of Sections, Chapters and sub-Chapters are provided for ease of reference only; for legal purposes [of the Harmonized System], classification shall be determined according to the terms of the headings and any relative Section or Chapter Notes and, provided such headings or Notes do not otherwise require, according to the following provisions:

“2. (a) Any reference in a heading to an article shall be taken to include a reference to that article incomplete or unfinished, provided that, as presented, the incomplete or unfinished article has the essential character of the complete or finished article. It shall also be taken to include a reference to that article complete or finished (or falling to be classified as complete or finished by virtue of this Rule), presented unassembled or disassembled.

“(b) Any reference in a heading to a material or substance shall be taken to include a reference to mixtures or combinations of that material or substance with other materials or substances. Any reference to goods of a given material or substance shall be taken to include a reference to goods consisting wholly or partly of such material or substance. The classification of goods consisting of more than one material or substance shall be according to the principles of Rule 3.

- “3. When by application of Rule 2(b) or for any other reason, goods are, prima facie, classifiable under two or more headings, classification shall be effected as follows:
- “(a) The heading which provides the most specific description shall be preferred to headings providing a more general description. However, when two or more headings each refer to part only of the materials or substances contained in mixed or composite goods or to part only of the items in a set put up for retail sale, those headings are to be regarded as equally specific in relation to those goods, even if one of them gives a more complete or precise description of the goods.
- “(b) Mixtures, composite goods consisting of different materials or made up of different components, and goods put up in sets for retail sale, which cannot be classified by reference to 3(a), shall be classified as if they consisted of the material or component which gives them their essential character, insofar as this criterion is applicable.
- “(c) When goods cannot be classified by reference to 3(a), or 3(b), they shall be classified under the heading which occurs last in numerical order among those which equally merit consideration.
- “4. Goods which cannot be classified in accordance with the above Rules shall be classified under the heading appropriate to the goods to which they are most akin.
- “5. In addition to the foregoing provisions, the following Rules shall apply in respect of the goods referred to therein:
- “(a) Camera cases, musical instrument cases, gun cases, drawing instrument cases, necklace cases and similar containers, specially shaped or fitted to contain a specific article or set of articles, suitable for long-term use and presented with the articles for which they are intended, shall be classified with such articles when of a kind normally sold therewith. This Rule does not, however, apply to containers which give the whole its essential character.
- “(b) Subject to the provisions of Rule 5(a) above, packing materials and packing containers presented with the goods therein shall be classified with the goods if they are of a kind normally used for packing such goods. However, this provision is not binding when such packing materials or packing containers are clearly suitable for repetitive use.

- “6. For legal purposes [of the Harmonized System], the classification of goods in the subheadings of a heading shall be determined according to the terms of those subheadings and any related subheading notes and, mutatis mutandis, to the above Rules, on the understanding that only subheadings at the same level are comparable. For the purposes of this Rule the relative Section and Chapter Notes also apply, unless the context otherwise requires.”

63. The classification of products other than transportable goods, mainly services, shall be determined according to the terms of the categories as described in the divisions, groups, classes or subclasses in sections 5 to 9 of CPC. When services are, prima facie, classifiable under two or more categories, classification shall be effected as follows, on the understanding that only categories at the same level (sections, divisions, groups, classes or subclasses) are comparable:

- (a) The category that provides the most specific description shall be preferred to categories providing a more general description;
- (b) Composite services consisting of a combination of different services which cannot be classified by reference to (a) shall be classified as if they consisted of the service which gives them their essential character, in so far as this criterion is applicable;
- (c) When services cannot be classified by reference to (a) or (b), they shall be classified under the category that occurs last in numerical order among those that equally merit consideration.

64. Services that cannot be classified in accordance with the above rules shall be classified under the category appropriate to the services to which they are most akin.

65. Products making up a bundle (combination) of goods and services shall be classified according to their main component (value added), in so far as the criterion is applicable.

B. Explanatory notes

66. In addition to the interpretative rules, the explanatory notes of HS also apply to sections 0 to 4 of CPC as the transportable goods in CPC are defined in terms of HS. The notes of HS are well elaborated and their use reduces the confusion that might result if new reference material associated with CPC were drawn up. The explanatory notes of HS are not reproduced in the present publication but they are available in the original source. The title descriptions of CPC categories in sections 0 to 4 are also based on HS, although they might have been somewhat shortened. Regarding the content of CPC subclasses in sections 0 to 4, the reference to HS2002 heading codes and related explanatory notes should provide a clear understanding about their coverage.

67. Explanatory notes for CPC categories in sections 5 to 9, mainly covering service products, are included in part four of the present publication. The explanatory notes provide descriptions of services that are included in each subclass and those that are excluded, for reference purposes. In some cases explanatory notes are also available for categories of higher aggregated levels of the CPC structure. Whenever an exclusion is provided, it is accompanied by an exact cross-reference to indicate the code of the subclass where the service in question is actually classified. Although the title description should define the boundary of the subclass, the explanatory notes clarify further the border and content of the class. The explanatory notes are not intended to present an exhaustive list of all the services under each heading; they should be regarded only as lists of illustrative examples of the subclass content.

68. The explanatory notes provided for sections 5 to 9 of CPC were developed for statistical purposes. Although these notes intend to provide clarification, as the lists are not exhaustive, users may need further guidance from the United Nations Statistics Division on the interpretation of the exact content of CPC subclasses. It should be noted that if CPC categories are utilized for purposes other than statistical ones, for example as a source for the preparation of legal documents or for such purposes as procurement, those who prepared the legal document in which reference is made to CPC categories, not the developers of the classification, are responsible for explaining the use of those categories in the legal document.

C. Indexes to the classification

69. Part six of the present publication contains an alphabetical index of service products based on the CPC subclasses in sections 5 to 9. The alphabetical index is currently available in English only and is included as part six in all language versions of the publication. The index consists of 12,217 items linked to 972 CPC subclass codes. For sections 0 to 4, as a reference tool for finding the CPC subclasses and codes of transportable goods, users may consult the alphabetical indexes developed by HS, and/or the Commodity Indexes for SITC Rev. 3<sup>40</sup>.

70. The alphabetical index contained in part seven below provides a practical tool for finding particular products included in the various CPC categories in sections 5 to 9 and also for locating services not specifically mentioned in category descriptions. In addition to its search and coding functions, the alphabetical index assists users in applying the classification and helps them to understand its structure.

D. Correspondence between revisions

71. Minor refinements of CPC Version 1.1 (updating language, correcting and amending explanatory notes through interpretation and rulings) will be made as needed and will be widely disseminated. Major revisions are not expected to occur more frequently than every five years.

72. Changes that have been made in CPC are reflected in the correspondence tables between the Provisional CPC, CPC Version 1.0 and CPC Version 1.1; however, further detailed explanations may be required in certain circumstances. The extent of changes between CPC revisions indicates full or partial correspondence to one or several categories of the previous version. Codes of partially corresponding categories are marked with an asterisk and include an additional description identifying the detail used. It should be noted that some of the changes in the wording of explanatory notes or title descriptions have been made for clarification purposes only, without any implications for the content of the category. Sometimes changes in codes are simply technical consequences of the overall change in the structure of the classification owing to related recoding of categories. Therefore it is advisable to check the correspondence tables, contained in Part six below, for verification and confirmation of actual changes. Interpretations and rulings on classification problems, including application issues related to the implementation of CPC, may be requested from the United Nations Statistics Division (see para. 40 above concerning support for users of CPC).

73. Due to the limited number of changes between versions 1.0 and 1.1 of the CPC, the correspondence table between these two classifications has been condensed, showing only the actual differences between the classifications. All codes not listed in this table are identical in both classifications.

E. Summary of main changes

74. This round of updates of the CPC has concentrated mainly on improving the structure and detail of selected sections of CPC Version 1.0. As mandated by the Statistical Commission at its twenty-eighth session, in 1995<sup>41</sup>, CPC Version 1.0 should be subject to further revision conducted at regular intervals, to ensure that the structure of the CPC adequately reflects changing economies and new technologies. The set of CPC updates for 2002 covers the following major areas: telecommunications, production services, real estate, and treatment of advertising.

Changes to Sections 0-4

75. Changes in the goods part of the CPC (Sections 0-4) are restricted to necessary adjustments following the revision of the Harmonized System (HS) in 2002 and corrections of previous versions of the CPC. The majority of changes reflect new links to the HS only. The CPC structure itself has been affected by the creation of new codes for specific waste products (CPC group 399) and some necessary adjustments of the scope of existing CPC subclasses. In the course of this, one CPC subclass (23140) has been deleted. A complete list of affected codes is shown in Part Six, Section I.

Mixed mode transport (new group 641)

76. A new class for classifying mixed mode land transport services has been created. This has been done to reflect the situation that a growing portion of expenses on transport cannot be allocated to a single mode of transport. While the existing categories of the CPC may be sufficient to produce statistics on producers of these services, the new group is necessary to be able to collect meaningful data from users of transportation services.

Electricity transmission and distribution services (class 6911)

77. Electricity transmission and distribution services, formerly under CPC subclass 69110, has been divided into two new subclasses, namely, 69111 Transmission of electricity and 69112 Distribution of electricity. The creation of these two subclasses recognizes the growing trend of industry deregulation in this area, requiring a differentiation of service products that can be provided by separate units. In addition, the reading of meters, which was previously classified with the transmission and distribution services, has been separated and is now classified under other support services in CPC subclass 85990.

Real estate appraisal services (new class 7224)

78. A new class 7224 for real estate appraisal services, formerly an integral part of classes 7222 and 7223 has been created under division 72. The existence of real estate appraisals, as a significant stand-alone service product in many countries, has been recognized in creating this class.

Licensing the right to use intangible assets (new group 733/deletion of divisions 51,52,53)

79. A new category at the 3-digit level, Group 733 - Licensing the right to use intangible assets, has been added to CPC Ver.1.1. This group includes permitting, granting or otherwise authorizing the use of intangible non-produced assets and intangible fixed assets or conveying some economic benefit from their use to a third party by the owner of the asset in return for the payment of royalties or license fees. A prime objective of this change is to achieve better consistency with the terminology of the 1993 SNA, the SNA definitions of intangible assets and the SNA classification of assets.

80. In the interest of methodological consistency, it was decided that previous Divisions 51, 52 and 53, consisting solely of assets, should be removed from the CPC. To reflect the SNA concept of products, the CPC will be restricted to goods and services only. A complete classification of assets will be developed separately. Some products, outputs of manufacturing processes, such as certain types of machinery, may become assets, but are still included in the CPC as products. To allow users to categorize the output of construction services, namely constructions put in place, a list of these constructions is shown in Part Five, Section II of this publication. These constructions are not considered products and are therefore excluded from the regular structure of the CPC.

Treatment of Advertising (new class 8363)

81. A new CPC class for direct sale of advertising time and space (except on commission), implicitly included before under class 8369, has been created. Since the direct sale of advertising space and time, e.g. by newspapers, is a product of significant value and since this product is different from services provided by advertising agencies, it was necessary to place them in a new, separate category of the CPC. A more detailed structure on sale of advertising time and space, not on commission; by media type (print, broadcast, Internet, electronic and other modes of advertisement) has been provided.

Telecommunications and program distribution services (group 841), and On-line access services (group 842)

82. In line with the rapid technological changes and evolving demands of goods and services in telecommunications, a restructuring and further elaboration of Groups 841 and 842 under Division 84 have been effected. Under CPC V1.1 group 841, the delineation of services by type of carrier (wired and wireless) has been eliminated. A more detailed structure by type of telecommunication service has been provided, namely, carrier services, fixed telephony services, mobile telecommunications services, private network services, data transmission services, other telecommunications and program distribution services. In addition, a more detailed breakdown and elaboration of Internet related services under Group 842, has been developed.

Divisions 86-89

83. Division 86 of the CPC V1.0 has been restructured with the objective of clarifying its content and creating more homogeneous classes. A proposal to split Division 86 in four ways has been devised, with services incidental to agriculture and other primary industries, as well as utilities, retained under Division 86. Installation services have been grouped with maintenance and repair in existing Division 87. Manufacturing services on physical inputs owned by others have been moved to new Division 88, and Other Manufacturing Services have been constituted as new Division 89. It includes publishing, printing, reproduction of media, metal casting, metal forging and recycling. It has also been agreed that manufacturing services of plastic and rubber products would be included in Division 89 as, for the most part, these services are not performed on physical inputs owned by others.

F. Future work

84. Work on the CPC will continue to account for new products and services and to reflect changes in the economic structure in different countries. The goods part of the CPC will periodically be revised to take account of the changes in the Harmonized System (HS), while the services part of the CPC will undergo evaluations and revisions as the need arises.

Part Five

Alternate Structures

ALTERNATE STRUCTURE FOR DIVISION 71

Division 71 of the Central Product Classification (CPC), Ver.1.1 covers financial services. The structure presented in Part III of this publication has been considered appropriate for comparing data on financial statistics at the international level. Most countries should be able to provide this level of detail in their national data.

Since there is generally a strong interest in statistics on financial services, some countries may be interested in providing more detailed statistics in this area. For this purpose, the following section provides an alternate structure for describing financial services. It provides more detail in some areas than the structure presented in Part III, but is otherwise compatible to that structure.

This alternate breakdown has already been introduced in CPC Ver.1.0 and remains virtually unchanged.

Countries are invited to explore the usefulness of this extended breakdown and comment on its future use.

LIST OF CONSTRUCTIONS

The Constructions classified here are non-transportable produced goods (except land).

They are placed here as an Annex to the CPC to avoid confusion with Construction services in CPC Division 54 that are the output of the Construction industry.

The classification may be used as a list of constructions put in place.

It is customary to collect the total value of complete constructions put in place, from purchasers rather than from producers, as it is the purchaser that knows the total value of the construction put in place.

A variety of goods and services, such as building materials, architectural services, engineering services, services of building trades, services of construction contractors and services of operative builders, all to be found classified in the main body of the CPC, as well as land, constitute inputs that are part of the total value of constructions put in place.

Since the structure of this list is identical to Division 53 of the Central Product Classification, Version 1.0, the previous code numbers have been retained.

Construction put in place less land is treated as gross fixed capital formation in the SNA. Construction put in place is therefore smaller than construction output by the value of land and construction services that do not enter into the value of construction put in place.

PART SIX

CORRESPONDENCE TABLES BETWEEN CPC VERSION 1.1 AND PREVIOUS VERSIONS

The following part of the publication shows the relationship of CPC Version 1.1 with previous versions of the CPC. The correspondences are provided to allow users to compare data compiled or published according to different versions of the CPC and to assess the changes made in the revision processes.

In all correspondence tables shown, an asterisk (*) indicates a partial link between the codes shown only.

Section I shows all codes affected by changes in sections 0-4. These changes are essentially restricted to necessary adjustments following the revision of the Harmonized System (HS) in 2002 and occasional corrections of previous versions of the CPC. The majority of changes reflect new links to the HS only. The CPC structure itself has been affected by the creation of new codes for specific waste products (CPC group 399) and some necessary adjustments of the scope of existing CPC subclasses. In the course of this, one CPC subclass (23140) has been deleted. For each code listed, the actual information changed between CPC Version 1.0 and Version 1.1 has been highlighted.

Section II describes the link between individual subclasses in Sections 5-9 of CPC Version 1.0 and Version 1.1. Due to the limited scope of changes between these two versions, only codes that are affected by change are shown in this table. All unlisted codes maintain a one-to-one relationship to the same code in the other classification, without changes in scope. This list starts from CPC Version 1.0 and links to Version 1.1. The links are shown at the most detailed level only.

Section III shows the reversal of the correspondences of Section II, starting from CPC Version 1.1, linking to Version 1.0. The links are shown at the most detailed level only.

Most changes in Section II and III cover movements of single services between subclasses, while the codes and titles of the subclasses involved remain unchanged. Therefore, this change in scope cannot be discerned from code and title of these subclasses alone. To better describe this situation, notes have been used describing the change in scope, rather than the describing the remaining contents of the subclass.

Section IV shows the complete correspondence between the Provisional CPC and CPC Version 1.1. This list starts from the Provisional CPC and links to Version 1.1. The correspondence covers all codes and is shown at all levels of the classification.

Section V shows the reversal of the correspondences of Section IV, starting from CPC Version 1.1, linking to the Provisional CPC. The correspondence covers all codes and is shown at all levels of the classification.

Detail descriptions in sections IV and V have been applied to categories at most detailed level of the classification only and have been given only where the second (“child”) classification is using partial subclasses. In cases where no partial subclasses are used, the regular title of the subclass already identifies the detail. The descriptions usually identify the actual portion included in each particular link. Since they try to describe the portion of the subclass in the child classification, the focus can be different and the description may vary between the same link in Section IV and V.
